

All City Groups To Meet Monday To Plan 4-Point Aid To Israel

Further action was being taken today by the Jewish Welfare Federation to implement the four-point program for Israel locally and to integrate it with other community responsibilities during the coming year.

Upon the federation's call, representatives of all local units of agencies sponsoring the National Planning Conference for Israel will meet Monday, Jan. 15 to begin laying the groundwork on a community level for the Four-Point appeal.

Agencies asked to be represented include: B'nai B'rith, Hadassah, Council of Jewish Women, all Indianapolis synagogues, the Zionist Organization of America, Mizrahi, Jewish Labor Committee, American Jewish Committee and the American Jewish Congress.

Lead To Community Meeting
From the meeting are expected to come plans for a broader community meeting to obtain the proper community support and interest.

The meeting will discuss the four projects for Israel the U.S. Jewish community has endorsed: A government bond issue, philanthropy through the established channels of the UJA, private investment of capital in Israel ventures and inter-government loans.

"The community must take steps—no later than now—to insure that the activation of the four-point program does not become a competitive affair rather than a cooperative one," Julian Freeman, federation president, warned.

UJA Major Israel Aid
"Philanthropy will continue to be the major source of American dollars for Israel. It would be disastrous if this means of helping Israel were allowed to fall into competition with other activities in Israel's behalf, Mr. Freeman said referring to the UJA and the bond sale.

"Despite the fact, and properly so, interest in Israel, this community does have other responsibilities and so do the agencies which will participate in the four-point program. We must make every effort to blend an effective combination of these forces that will be capable of meeting all our responsibilities in a fair manner."

WISECRACKS

By Norm Weisman

FLASH! A college romance graduated into an engagement that will make "homework" the natural thing to do! It's the lovely Shirley Cristli of Evansville and Bert Pollan of Chicago engaged! They are students at I. U. Congrats!

Flash! The Kirshbaum has a new future member via "It's a boy for the Abe Rabinowitz." Abe is the popular assistant director at Kirshbaum. Congrats, Abe and Pearl.

Flash! I almost stopped writing after seeing how my last week's column was cut up and cut out! But I now have the promise of the big boss that my column will be as written. It's really discouraging to write scoops, gossip, etc., then find it not in print. But all is serene. Here are some of last week's items left out:

Orchids to Sol Crash for a good deed. The day before Xmas some one broke into Kirshbaum and stole the 19-inch television set that was donated for use by the soldiers. So Sol rushed to his store (he sells television sets) and brought a big set just so the servicemen could have a look at television. They recovered the set, but it cannot be used until after the trial. Thanks from the boys, Sol!

All the sororities at I. U. had a representative in the bathing beauty contest and it was our own darling, Ann Tavel, representing Sigma Delta Tau who came out in a tie for top honors. After a call for a new vote, Ann lost by only one vote. One thing I'll say about Ann—she's not only queen for a day, but always.

That "baby" bird went "stork" mad and delivered a boy for the Irv Lindermans, a boy for the Dave Cooks, and a boy for the Dr. Phil Fogels, and a boy for the Bob Wolfs and a girl for the Abe Bortz! Congrats to all the new parents!

Best of luck to Dick Perk who swaps his civilian clothes for the army style! His friends gave Dick a swell going-away party at Broadmoor last Monday night. And I want to tell you about another swell guy who is now taking his basic training in Camp Breckinridge for the past three weeks. He's Bernie Landman. Bernie just passed his bar exam and then was sworn in for a full fledged attorney. He is 22 years old and considered one of the youngest lawyers to pass the bar. Best of luck, Bernie!

Flash! Clyde Stein of St. Louis just ringed the adorable Florene Newmark of Lafayette. Congrats! Flash! I can't mention who just as yet, but there are four of our local talent trying out for the Horace Heidt show which will be here soon.

Happy birthday, Mrs. Jack Ber- man! The Jr. Hadassah will have their membership dance Jan. 13 at the Severin. Gals ask the guys. Swell bunch of gals, too.

Joke? Did you hear about the moron who swallowed electric bulbs because the doctor told him to eat something "light." Ouch! Flash! Prediction! I said it five months ago and I'll repeat! I hope a Cleveland "she"-male will make a local "he"-male (he's very prominent, popular and a wonderful guy) think of headlines for me!

This will cause me lots of ribbing, but it's too cute to keep. I bowl on the Aaron-Ruben team every Sunday morning in the B'nai B'rith league. Last Sunday we were given our bowling shirts and our first names were printed above the pocket. This is to inform Bernie Goodman, our captain, that my name was misspelled. They put a "W" instead of an "N" in Norm. Say, I wonder if Bernie???? I'll sue him for arson! I'm "burning" up. (Tee hee)

Flash! Got a cigar from Max Caplan. His darling wife Pearl presented him with a boy. Congrats! The Sammies fraternity at I. U. will have their big formal dance tomorrow (Sat.) nite at I. U. Say Sammies, didn't one of your boys misplace his pin and ended up on a girl's dress? It just happened. See whose pin is missing! The Sammies are a swell fraternity. (I'm still an honorary Sammie pledge of I. U. It's been four years and I'm very proud of that honor.)

It's now attorney Karl Price. He just passed the bar exam in California. I still wonder if he hasn't a "cute" reason for staying out there. Best wishes, Karl!

Happy first anniversary to the Bill Weinsteins and second to the

Here's Your Chance To Ride Horseback

Would you like to ride like Hopalong Cassidy or Roy Rogers? If so, then join a Kirshbaum riding class. These classes are now being organized for boys and girls from 8-18 years of age. No previous riding experience is required.

Each class will have a series of ten lessons under the instruction of Bob Wells. Riding master in charge of the Crescent Hills Riding Academy.

Cost for the ten lessons is $7.50. Classes are open to center members only.

Geoffrey Segars! Joke? I know a girl who has to be handled with kid gloves because her father's a fingerprint expert. Ouch! Happy 28th anniversary to the Leo Talesnicks! Ditto for the anniversaries of the Lou Leventhals, the Dave Lurveys, and the Harry Berkes. May you all have many, many more.

My "rave" of the month goes to Barbara Meyers because she is one unassuming swellelegant girl! To know her is to like her and everyone does.

Personal to everyone. Please let me know if friends of yours and mine get inducted into the service. Sometimes if I mention where a fellow is sent, then maybe someone will know of a friend, etc., who is in the same camp or a town nearby so that a meetin' can be arranged. Let's all help by being helpful.

GUN GIVEN HIM BY BROTHER SAVES LIFE OF SGT. LASKY

A German Luger given to him by his brother was credited with saving the life of Sgt. Sheldon Lee Lasky, 24, who was wounded in the back on the retreat from the reservoir near the Manchurian border to Hungnam.

Sgt. Lasky wrote his father, Lee Lasky, Seville Apt. Hotel, that his own rifle had jammed and had it not been for the gun given him by his brother when he re-entered service last July, he wouldn't be writing the letter at all. He did not elaborate on the statement in the letter.

Mr. Lasky believes his son is not seriously wounded, and may be en route back to the U.S. The Marine machine gunner was wounded in World War II. He enlisted while only seventeen years old, and took part in the assault on Iwo Jima.

Sgt. Lasky was with the 1st Marine Division. He wrote his father that of 280 men in the 7th regiment, only 43 were left at the time he was wounded, which was at Koto en route from the reservoir to Hungnam, from which he was evacuated.

The second brother, Jack, is a civilian with the air force in Japan. He too is a veteran of World War II, of which the Luger he gave to his brother is a memento.

Mr. Lasky is Indiana representative for the American Distilleries, of Pekin, Ill. The Laskys moved here from Chicago in 1945. Mr. Lasky is a brother of Marvin Lasky, of Capitol Hill Wine and Liquor Co.

Israeli Composer of 'Tzema' Denies Charge of Defrauding U.S. Song Writer

National Jewish Post
BROOKLYN—Issachar Miron, Israel composer of "Tzema," last week vigorously rejected all charges of misrepresentation leveled against him in connection with his trip to this country to protect his interest in his song hit.

The charges were made by Julius Grossman, an American composer, who claimed that it was his addition of a third theme that launched "Tzema" on its way in the United States.

As reported by POST Hollywood columnist Simon Wincelberg, Grossman last month prepared a memorandum for American and Israel counselor officials.

HE HELPED

In that memorandum, Grossman asserted that the song's popularity in this country started with the addition by Grossman of 16 measures to Miron's original 32.

Grossman said that Miron had approved of the addition but that when Miron came to the United States, publicity which developed around the young Israel composer failed to mention Grossman's contribution.

Grossman declared that Miron had been guilty of deliberately concealing the American's part in the song and that the American had suffered "a wrong which has given me sustained mental anguish, done injury to my earning capacity as a composer, shamed me among my fellow composers, friends and associates." (NJP, Dec. 22, 1950).

MIRON DENIES ALL

Miron, in a statement to THE POST, said that both he and his publisher, Mills Music, Inc. "were taking steps against infringers."

"It was I who, in 1941, composed the ENTIRE song 'Tzema, Tzema,' and not 32, or 42 or so measures," Miron added. "It became popular among the Jewish soldiers, Jewish refugees in Israel and abroad."

"It was published in the United States and even by the Jewish Education Committee—for which organization Mr. Grossman works in the Music Department—in my original form, without additions. In this form the song was published by the Zionist Organization of America, and others, and became popular."

NOT ON ORDER

Miron did not deny that Grossman had written an addition but added, "I should like to say that I was not aware of the existence of any such addition at the time he wrote it. When I was apprised of it, I acknowledged his addition, viewing it with regard to cementing Israeli-American relations, and for no other reasons. In this light, we had a friendly exchange of correspondence."

The Israel composer indicated his attitude toward Grossman's claims of authorship in these words:

"It seems apparent to me that, were someone to interpolate some music to a well-known song of Irving Berlin, the song would retain the identity of Mr. Berlin's work, despite the addition of the efforts of the interpolator.

NOT AWARE

"Furthermore, Mr. Wincelberg refers to Mr. Grossman as the 'joint composer' of 'Tzema.' I was not aware of any aid given me by Mr. Grossman, or anyone else in creating the 'Tzema' song, nor does Mr. Grossman claim that he worked along with me in writing the 'Tzema' song."

He said that when he arrived in the United States, the press referred to him as the original composer "and rightly so. I do not think anyone can deny the truth of these assertions."

ADMITS ADDITION

Miron said he never denied there was an addition written by Mr. Grossman and that he had consented to Grossman's sharing in the royalties and having his name listed on the song by Mills Music.

Miron said he acknowledged the existence of the addition and cited statements in the Jewish Day, the American, the Jewish Morning Journal, the Jewish Chronicle of London, Davar, Maariv and stations WEVD and WLIV.

"I cannot alter the fact that several American newspaper people and other persons saw fit in their judgement to emphasize my name as the composer and at times to omit mention of Mr.

Grossman's having written an addition to the song," Miron said. "Several of them told me when I mentioned Grossman's addition, that the romance and drama of the creation of the song was around me as the originator, especially since I had written it for the Jewish Brigade of the British Army while I was on active service in the war against the Nazis."

THE WRONG QUESTION

To Grossman's charge that his name had been omitted at television appearances, the Israel composer said that he had no chance to mention Grossman's name because broadcast time was limited. Another reason, he said, was that "the broadcasts took the form of question-and-answer interviews and none of the questions put to me referred to Mr. Grossman or his addition."

He said another reason was that his appearances were made not alone as the composer of "Tzema," but also "as a popular composer and an active member of Israel music organizations."

Miron is assistant director in the Israeli Ministry of Education, a member of the Israeli ASCAP, vice chairman of the Israeli Composers, and an advisory board member of Broadcast for Diaspora.

SIX WILDACRES INSTITUTES WILL BE HELD THIS SUMMER

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The National B'nai B'rith Committee reports that there will be at least six "Wildacres" Institutes of Judaism this summer.

The current issue of the National Jewish Monthly, out this weekend, disclosed the degree to which the fraternal order has taken over supervision of the famous Institutes.

Started three years ago by Maurice Weinstein of Charlotte, N.C., third vice president of BB district No. 5, the institutes were taken over as a national project by the order at its last convention.

The idea was tried out for the first time at Wildacres, the North Carolina mountain-top home of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Blumenthal. Last summer, after the third annual North Carolina Institute, District 5 held its own Institute at the same place.

This summer the three Institutes held last year will be repeated. In addition, District 1, No. 7 and the Indiana B'nai B'rith will hold their first institutes.

The technique of the institutes involves a three or four-day retreat of Jewish adults away from the pressure of normal routines. In such settings, the adult students engage in intensive study of Jewish lore, aided by leading scholars.

New Cabinet Crisis Believed Averted

TEL AVIV—The second crisis threatening Israel's cabinet on the issue of religious education of immigrant children simmered down this week.

The new battle developed when Rabbi Judah L. Maimon, Minister of Religious Affairs, threatened to resign last week. Rabbi Maimon, who led the struggle which culminated in the collapse of the first Israel cabinet last fall, left a cabinet meeting in Jerusalem Jan. 3.

Hearing Held On Ban Of 'Oliver Twist' Film

National Jewish Post
NEW YORK—The U. S. motion picture industry resumed wrestling this week with the problem of the British film version of "Oliver Twist."

The executive committee of the Board of Directors of the Motion Picture Association of America on Tuesday voted unanimously to resubmit the British film to the Production Code Authority for reconsideration.

The PAC was instructed to explore the possibility of deleting "offensive scenes."

The MPA represents the major film producers and distributors in the United States.

The PAC is its film reviewing department. The PAC issues a "seal of approval" for films which it regards as conforming to the "basic rules of decency and good taste."

The MPA decision was endorsed by Eagle-Lion Films, distributors in the U.S. for J. Arthur Rank films. The distributor had appealed the PCA's refusal several weeks ago to give the film its seal.

TIGHT BAN

The action marked an informal but effective ban on the film, since few U.S. theaters will show a movie without the seal.

The ban has been in effect since 1948, when Jewish groups protested the portrayal of the Jew Fagin in the film. The reference to "offensive scenes" was aimed at the portrayal.

It was reliably learned, meanwhile, that the National Community Relations Advisory Council had placed the MPA decision on the agenda of its next meeting. An officer of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, major Jewish civic defense agency, said his organization would not issue any statement until after the NCRAC meeting. The NCRAC coordinates the work of Jewish civic defense agencies nationally.

CANT OMIT

A spokesman for Eagle-Lion said it would be impossible to omit Fagin or "his big, unattractive nose" from the film.

The spokesman said the reaction against the ban on "The Miracle," probably had something to do with the MPA decision to review the case.

An MPA spokesman denied that, however. He said the issue was considered solely on its merits.

KRAMER EXPLAINS

Rabbi Simon G. Kramer, president of the New York Board of Rabbis, which first fought showing the movie, told THE POST that the two movies are "not in the same character."

He said "The Miracle" is objected to by Catholics on religious grounds and "Oliver Twist" is objectionable to Jews because it is likely to increase anti-Semitism.

Bar Mitzvah Far From Home

National Jewish Post

CHICAGO—Leo Braziner this week became the first native of Panama ever to celebrate his Bar Mitzvah in the United States.

Leo is one of eight students from Panama attending the Chicago Jewish Academy, high school division of the seminary.

Enrique Arias, Panama counsel to the United States, visited the seminary to congratulate the boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Braziner of Panama City, Panama.

Since the parents could not be present, rabbis of the seminary substituted for them at the ceremony, which was recorded. The recordings and Bar Mitzvah pictures of Leo were sent to the parents.

First National Jewish Education Meet Plans Major Program

Council, JPFO Deliberately Barred; 'Doing Nothing For Jews'

National Jewish Post

NEW YORK—The number of pupils enrolled in Jewish schools in the United States increased nearly 500 per cent in the first half of the Twentieth Century, it was disclosed this week.

The data was obtained in a survey recently completed by the American Association for Jewish Education, of which Michael Stavitsky is president.

At a press conference, Stavitsky said the survey was undertaken in preparation for the First National Conference on Jewish Education, to be held Jan. 13-15 at the Hotel Biltmore here.

The conference is under sponsorship of the Association in cooperation with 30 national Jewish organizations.

STAVITSKY

Stavitsky said the purpose of the conference was to give the Jewish education association a community mandate to continue its efforts to raise the standard and expand the effect of Jewish education in the United States.

NO INVITATIONS

The anti-Zionist American Council for Judaism and the Communist-dominated Jewish Peoples Fraternal Order were the only national Jewish organizations not invited to the conference.

Stavitsky told The POST that the Council and the JPFO were "not doing anything constructive as Jews" and would have "nothing to contribute" to the conference.

At the first session Saturday night, five speakers will participate in a symposium on "Whither American Jewish Life?" The panel consists of Rabbi Philip S. Bernstein of Rochester, president of the Central Conference of American Rabbis; Dr. Ira Eisenstein, leading Reconstructionist figure; Dr. Joseph H. Lookstein, outstanding Orthodox educator; Sh. Niger, authority on Yiddish literature; and Menahem Ribalow, editor of the Hebrew weekly, Ha-doar.

TWO PANELS

Two panel discussions will be held simultaneously Sunday morning. One is on the personality development of the Jewish child, the other on the role of various factors in the child's adjustment as a Jew.

On Sunday evening, Hayim Greenberg, leading Labor Zionist, will discuss the role of Jewish education in the community. Julian Freeman, president of the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds, will talk on "The Role of the Community in Jewish Education."

SEEK PERMANENT BODY

The major item on the business agenda will be the setting up of a permanent organization for joint educational efforts by the 30 participating organizations and the association.

The association survey revealed a rapid and wide-scale expansion in Jewish educational activities, which greatly outstripped the growth in American Jewish population during the 50-year period.

The study revealed that the number of Jewish children enrolled in the various Jewish educational institutions was 45,000 in 1900, based on a Jewish child population of 222,208 and a total Jewish population of 1,058,135.

500 PER CENT

In 1950, the number of Jewish children in Jewish schools had jumped to 266,609, a boost of nearly 500 per cent, as against an estimated 185 per cent increase in the child population, in a total Jewish community of 4,500,000.

Dr. Uriah Z. Engelman, director of the association's Department of Research, Information and Publications, told reporters that 45 per cent of Jewish children are today receiving some kind of a Jewish education. Jewish children of school age constituted 4 per cent of the total U.S. Jewish population.

The survey found that a large part of the increase was due to the entrance of a large number of Jewish girls into the schools. In 1900, Jewish education was mainly a matter of teaching traditional religious rituals which meant that the program was boy-centered.

GIRLS NOW, TOO

As a result of many influences, the survey reported, "the Jewish school has been evolving from an institution for teaching ritual into a religious-cultural educational institution, and has begun to acquire educational importance for girls as well as boys in the American Jewish community."

As a result, the enrollment of girls, which was negligible in 1900, reached more than 40 per cent of total enrollment in the weekday afternoon and Sunday schools, while the all-day schools have remained mainly institutions for boys, the survey found.

In 1950, about 37 per cent of the children were registered in afternoon Hebrew schools, five per cent in afternoon Yiddish schools, eight per cent in all day schools, 49 per cent in Sunday schools and around one per cent in "released-time" classes held once during the week.

MOST SYNAGOGUES

By far the largest number of children are in synagogue-sponsored schools. A sample survey indicated that of children in such schools 45 per cent were in Conservative congregation schools, 25 per cent in Reform and slightly more than 17 per cent were enrolled in non-congregational schools, whose educational philosophy is that of the Orthodox group.

All day schools, which were widespread in America before establishment of the public school system, when they began to disappear, have made a comeback.

50 COMMUNITIES

The survey found that all day schools are now to be found in 50 communities and have an aggregate enrollment of 21,500 pupils.

A major change, the survey found, was the degree to which Jewish education has become a community function.

"Today, there are 40 cities, including all the large metropolitan centers, which have developed community-wide programs of Jewish education, financed and supervised by central educational agencies responsible to the community, the study found.

PLENTY OF FUNDS

In 1950, more than 60 communities reported allocations from federations and welfare funds to Jewish schools, with close to two and a half million dollars allocated in 1949.

The survey also reported that quality of teaching personnel has improved and that "Jewish education has become an important profession, offering possibilities for specialization in a variety of related fields along the educational ladder from kindergarten to college."

ISRAEL PLANS LAW FOR JEWISH NIMRODS

National Jewish Post

JERUSALEM—National parks and game preserves to protect wild life in Israel will be established soon, the Ministry of Agriculture announced last week.

The Ministry said it also was planning to re-introduce into Israel species of animals and birds living here in Biblical times and whose presence now would be beneficial to the agriculture of Israel.

Among those to be brought in are the Nile duck and the pheasant.

The ministry said it was drafting a bill which will fix hunting seasons and methods of hunting. In addition, the forthcoming law will provide for the preservation of migratory birds.

It was disclosed at the same time that species of wild life, once native to Israel, were among a lot of 90 animals and birds purchased in Holland by Dr. Aharon Shulov, director of the Jerusalem Biblical Zoo.

Dr. Shulov returned from a three-week tour of Holland and Switzerland, where he organized Societies of Friends of the Jerusalem Biblical zoo.

Communal Board Suggests Consumer Boycott

Johannesburg Schochtim Deny Their Fight For More Pay Endangering Kashrut in Meat

JOHANNESBURG, So. Africa—The organized shochochim (ritual slaughterers) of Johannesburg have vigorously denied that their fight for higher pay has endangered the ritual purity of kosher meat. The year-long dispute came to a climax last fall when the Agudat Hashachtim (Organization of ritual slaughterers) repudiated the authority of the communal shechita board.

Since then ritual slaughter has been carried on via private arrangements between the kosher wholesale butchers and the shochochim, with the Johannesburg Jewish community lacking any control, according to the South African Zionist Record.

MEAT NOT KOSHER

The latest exchange involved A. L. Meyer, chairman of the General Purposes Committee of the Jewish Board of Deputies at its monthly meeting, and I. J. Kagan, chairman of the Johannesburg Board of Shechita.

In his regular monthly report, Meyer said that ritual slaughter was being gravely jeopardized by the deadlock. He said it was essential that shechita be controlled by the Jewish community and charged that the shochochim had flouted the duly constituted communal bodies and were conducting shechita as a private enterprise.

Meyer said that Johannesburg Jewry were obligated to give full support to religious authorities and to the Shechita Board and to back the groups in whatever action was needed.

DECISION URGENT

Kagan said that the community must decide once and for all "whether small groups should be allowed to flout communal authority."

He said it might become necessary to ask Johannesburg Jewry not to buy meat until the deadlock was resolved.

Slapping Kagan's effort to give Johannesburg Jewry "the impression that they are eating non-kosher meat," the Agudat Hashachtim replied in a letter to the Record.

"The truth is that slaughtering of animals is being carried on in complete Kashrut under regular supervision as heretofore," the organization asserted.

NO CHANGES

"No changes have occurred thus far and during the period of discussion the shochochim did nothing to alter the state of affairs," the statement said.

The statement said that last June, the shochochim warned the Board of Shechita that if they did not carry out the decision of the Beth Din by July 31, the shochochim would be forced to break all connections with the board.

The shochochim charged that shortly before a three year agreement with the shechita board ran out in 1949, the shochochim asked for a salary increase.

The Beth Din (rabbinical court), the Board of Deputies and the Union of Wholesale Butchers then began negotiations and it was agreed that the shochochim should get a salary increase.

The statement said that when the three-year contract expired, the Shechita Board lost all interest in providing the pay increase. The Beth Din then called a meeting at which the shochochim agreed to compromise their demands.

FAILURE CHARGED

"But the Board did not carry out its part of the agreement," the Agudat Hashachtim declared. "It completely ignored all the points agreed upon, including the rise in salaries of the shochochim."

"The shochochim had been struggling along for many years with a minimum of pay because of religious principles and had every right to expect moral consideration from the Board of Shechita," the statement concluded.

The Only Cure Psychiatric Care OK'd For Hater

PHILADELPHIA—Psychiatric and medical care was recommended by the Philadelphia Jewish Community Relations Council for a 51-year-old writer of anti-Semitic letters.

The JCRC, working with police, helped capture Elmer Bier, a dish-washer who lives in the tenderloin section. He admitted sending anti-Semitic letters to Allied Jewish Appeal leaders and other prominent local citizens.

Nathan Agran, director of the JCRC Community Service Department, appeared at a hearing before Magistrate Benjamin Schwartz, who committed Bier to the Men's Division of the Municipal court for psychiatric and medical care.

New citrus groves are to be planted on an area of 5,000 acres in the Lydda plain.

Hillel Denies Took Resignation Of Lowell For 'Public Relations'

National Jewish Post

NEW YORK—The Hillel Foundations issued a denial this week that pro-Communist charges had any connection with the acceptance of the resignation last month of Rabbi Benjamin Lowell as national administrative secretary.

Rabbi Arthur J. Lelyveld, national Hillel director, issued the statement in comment on an explanation given by Rabbi Lowell to the American Jewish Press service. The AJPS is a newsgathering venture recently set up by the Association of English-Jewish Newspapers.

WHAT LOWELL SAID

Rabbi Lowell told the AJPS that the Hillel National Commission felt that the public relations effect of the pro-Red charges against him were more damaging than the value of his work within the Hillel structure.

"This allegation that the National Hillel Commission would sacrifice a member of its staff to public relations considerations is entirely without foundation," Rabbi Lelyveld declared.

"It goes without saying that Hillel has made it a practice in the past and will continue in the future to guard the Hillel program against the incursions of forces incompatible with American democracy and the positive Jewish ideals which it serves," he said. "At the same time, the National Hillel Commission has stood and will continue to stand firmly behind every member of the Hillel professional family who deserves protection against irresponsible charges."

POKE AT LEAGUE

The references to "irresponsible charges" were presumably aimed at the American Jewish League Against Communism. That organization has been carrying on a fight against Rabbi Lowell for more than a year.

Shortly before Rabbi Lowell resigned, the League asserted that it had been informed that Stanley Fuld, Judge of the New York State Court of Appeals, had been named by B'nai B'rith president Frank Goldman to conduct an investigation "of our charges of pro-Communist involvement against Rabbi Lowell." (NJP, Dec. 22, 1950.)

In announcing Rabbi Lowell's resignation, the Hillel Foundation had declared that the rabbi had resigned "because of his recognition of a basic difference in approach to Hillel's aims and policies and not because of the pressure of any outside group or individual." (NJP, Dec. 29, 1950.)

NOT OUR WAY

"Whatever Rabbi Lowell's motivations for submitting his resignation may have been, we must forcefully reiterate that Hillel's acceptance of his resignation was not motivated by the charges of any outside individual or any outside group and certainly not by consideration of what might prove to be expedient from the standpoint of public relations."

Rabbi Lelyveld said that Rabbi Lowell's resignation was "fully considered" by Hillel's personnel committee, whose chairman is Dr. William Haber, former adviser on Jewish affairs, to Gen. Lucius Clay in Germany.

Other members of the personnel committee are Dr. Abram L. Sachar, president of Brandeis University, Rabbi Joseph Lookstein of New York and Dr. Paul Klapper, former president of Queens College.

Critics Of Anti-Red Conference Assailed As Jewish 'Isolationists'

National Jewish Post

NEW YORK—A top official of the American Jewish Committee this week denounced Jewish critics of the All-American Conference Against Communism as "Jewish isolationists."

The statement came from Dr. S. Andhill Fineberg, director of community services for the AJCommittee, major civic defense agency.

Dr. Fineberg vigorously defended AJCommittee and Jewish War Veterans participation in the Conference and charged that the American Jewish Congress "denounced the Conference before it even held its first meeting and before the invitation list was complete."

The AJCommittee official was particularly vigorous in his criticism of the Congress for its repeated reference to the fact that Merwin K. Hart, professional anti-Semite and his National Economic Council had been invited to the first session last spring.

BLUNDER CORRECTED

"This blunder was speedily corrected and the invitation was revoked," Dr. Fineberg said. "Neither Hart nor any representative of the National Economic Council has attended any session of the All-American Conference."

The AJCommittee official inferentially denied charges that no invitations had gone out to such liberal anti-Communist organizations as the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the Urban League.

THEY WERE INVITED

"Invitations to the All-American Conference were issued to 60 organizations, including the NAACP and the Urban League," Dr. Fineberg said. "Because of certain unwise pressures, these and some of the other liberal organizations which had been invited to membership in the Conference did not join."

"The CIO and the B'nai B'rith attended the first session but did not join. They are still welcome," Dr. Fineberg said.

He insisted that both the AJCommittee and the Jewish War Veterans deserved "high praise" for their decision to participate. He said that the Conference "should be judged on the basis of its own activities and not on a smear campaign that cites no facts and keeps on trotting out Mr. Hart who has denounced the Conference."

DIDN'T DO IT

"The Conference has not taken any action nor has it passed even one resolution nor issued even one statement to which its critics have expressed any objection," he said. "The Conference has not done any of the wicked things its antagonists predicted it would do, but their denunciations are as fervent as though outrageous things were done by the All-American Conference."

Dr. Fineberg contended that an all-important question was "whose influence has prevailed at the conference?"

"If the advocates of Jewish isolation had succeeded, there would be no liberal and no Jewish influence within the Conference," he asserted. "In that event, anti-Semites might have gained control."

WHO IS IN

Dr. Fineberg said that American Jews should know who hold official positions in the Conference.

"The chairman is Dr. Daniel A. Poling, an outstanding friend of Israel and a champion of the rights of minority groups. Dr. Poling represents the Federal Council of Churches."

"A vice chairman is Lewis G. Hines, representative of the American Federation of Labor. The treasurer is J. George Friedman, representing the Jewish War Veterans. The honorary chairman is George N. Craig, of the American Legion, a veteran organization which includes a great many Jews and whose national chaplain is a rabbi, Sidney Lefkowitz. The secretary is W. C. Sawyer, representing Freedoms Foundation."

SUCH REACTIONARIES

Other organizations represented on the executive board were the National Education Association, the Lions Club, the Disabled American Veterans, the Motion Picture Producers Association, the National Catholic Conference of Men and the National Evangelic Association.

He said that the board "obviously" did not consist of 16 champions of civil rights and liberties nor of 16 enemies of civil rights and liberties.

"The Board represents the American public, which cannot be represented by a number of people who hold identical views on important subjects, on which the public itself is divided," he said.

He said that active anti-Semites would very much like to be members of a Conference "which represents an aggregate membership of sixty million people."

"Apparently some Jews wish that anti-Semites had gained control of the Conference and would now be delighted if someone like Gerald L. K. Smith were its chairman."

He said that the AJCommittee and the Jewish War Veterans had made friends within the Conference and unlike the Jewish isolationists, they were willing to mingle with a cross-section of the American public from which every anti-Semitic organization was scrupulously excluded.

He urged that "in discussing the All-American Conference, let's have facts, names and truth about the Conference instead of trotting out, over and over again, a certain Mr. Hart who was swiftly rejected and who never set foot even into the preliminary meeting which was called to create the Conference."

ADL'S EPSTEIN ASSAILS PEGLER
FOR CHARGE OF 'GESTAPO' TACTICS

RISING IN appropriate wrath, BENJAMIN EPSTEIN, national chairman of the Anti-Defamation League, blistered columnist WESTBROOK PEGLER for his demands for a congressional probe of the activities of the ADL. Pegler, with his customary scholarly approach, charged the ADL with "gestapo" methods. Epstein told the American Jewish Press that the ADL had offered its books to a Congressional committee and was told it was unnecessary. The ADL official said that "Pegler completely lacked the facts. What he wrote was poppycock."

The New Hope

The merger of American Reform and Conservative Judaism within a generation was submitted as a likely possibility last week by a leading Reform rabbi, PHILIP BERNSTEIN, president of the Central Conference of American Rabbis. He told Mike Shulman of the Philadelphia Jewish Times that "it looks like Conservative Judaism is becoming more liberal and that Reform Judaism is swinging back from Left to Center," as the basis for his prediction.

The Notable Record

The Hebrew Theological College of Chicago had an achievement this week to which it could legitimately point with pride. Three of the four Jewish chaplains now serving in Korea received their rabbinical training at the midwest seminary. They are chaplains GARSON GOODMAN, OSCAR LIFSHUTZ and MILTON ROSEN.

The Point Clarified

Famous violinist JASCHA HEIFETZ and convert conductor SERGE KOUSSEVITSKY have a great admiration for each other, but facts are facts, as Heifetz indicated in a letter to the Jerusalem Post. Heifetz cited a comment by the conductor to the effect that the violinist has said he would not play again in Israel until the Israeli built a suitable hall for the famous Israel orchestra, now in the United States on tour. Heifetz declared it was true that he hoped a new and larger hall would be built, but, he added, gently, he did not say what Koussevitsky had said he said. "New hall or not, I am looking forward to a return visit to Israel in 1952."

REPORT FROM HOLLYWOOD

ORSON WELLES HATES NAZIS, AND SAYS SO DESPITE THE COST

By SIMON WINCEMBERG

IF SOME stars currently appear reluctant to get involved in films with anti-nazi tendencies, this is made understandable to a certain extent by an item in the Hollywood Reporter, which tells that anti-nazi statements made by actor-director Orson Welles in France and reprinted throughout Germany cost Twentieth-Century-Fox "about $80,000 in film rentals as a result of the boycott and cancellation of bookings for 'The Prince of Foxes,' and the Germans are so mad they won't even stand for the playing of the 'Harry Lime Theme' (from 'The Third Man') which reminds them of Orson."

The same week, Time magazine, with much finer regard for the delicate feelings of the misunderstood Germans, itemed "Loudmouthed Actor" Orson Welles was at it again," sourly regarded Welles' "confession" to have knocked out a tooth of a German who gave the Hitler salute, and his opinion that "most Germans were hypochondriacs who still sang the Horst Wessel in every nightclub." (Sample line from the Horst Wessel song: "When Jewish blood spurts from the knife, then all goes twice as well." Some 15 years ago, a friend of mine once had the charming experience of hearing the song while going under the ether for the removal of her appendix.)

According to the same Time item, the "loss to U. S. movie-makers" due to a boycott of Welles pictures by the "indignant Germans" was $250,000, a nice round figure which, compared to the sum cited above, serves to confirm one's belief in the innate conservatism of the Hollywood Reporter.

AUFBAU, NEW YORK'S INTERNATIONAL German-Jewish weekly, contributes the information that Welles later called his set-to with the nazi "the most beautiful moment" of his stay in Germany.

One hates to estimate, even with Time's impressive research organization at one's disposal, how much damage Hollywood's products suffered at the sensitive German box office due to certain anti-nazi actions by the so loudmouthed U. S. Army from 1942 to 1945.

A PROPOS the seasonal spotlight on the educational and emotional disadvantages of being a minority religion, and the problem of those who have chosen the path of least resistance, I cite the popular card on which one Hollywood agent sent out her Greetings of the Season a couple of years ago.

The scene, as drawn by cartoonist Milt (Nize Baby) Gross, shows a youngster at his window, peering delightedly into the livingroom across the street.

Caption: "Look mummy. The goyim have Christmas too."

FOR a moment during the screening of "The Magnificent Yankee" it looked as if a potentially dramatic situation might finally get the picture moving after all. The scene was a Washington, D. C. restaurant, when the wife of the late Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes—the lowspots of whose Washington days this alleged biography skims with incorruptible consistency—leans toward her husband and wonders under her breath whether the confirmation of his old friend Louis Brandeis as a Supreme Court justice might not be getting such strong opposition because Brandeis is J--ish.

But Louis Calhern, playing the judge like a man who just got through playing a musical comedy version of Buffalo Bill, dismisses this theory with a rather startled look.

IT ALL SUMS UP TO BE A DISCONNECTED and moderately painful travesty of the lives of two great men, during which a lot of nice, if dull, things manage to get said about Justice Brandeis, played well and warmly by character actor Eduard Franz, who becomes almost obliterated by pancake makeup in the latter scenes.

Equipped with that heavy-handed brand of safe-and-sane major studio liberalism, "The Magnificent Yankee" discloses next to nothing of the political and social views of Holmes and Brandeis, outside of frequently reiterating the—in the light of subsequent events—safe prediction that the country was not going to the dogs.

WHO knows but Twentieth-Century-Fox has done wisely to eschew its "David and Bathsheba" location trip to Israel and instead build a replica of Old Jerusalem near Nogales, Arizona, where the skyline would be unencumbered by such intrusions of harsh modernity as the New City, the vigilance of the Netura Karta, the Hebrew University or trigger-happy Arab sentries?

Leave it to the Jews to louse up a perfectly good picturesque landscape with a lot of ugly little orange groves and tractors and swarms of healthy children.

Never build up a film industry that way, fellows.

ACCORDING to Mr. David C. Selznick's secretary, the projected filming of John Hersey's best-seller, "The Wall," still remains unimplemented by any sort of publicly announced move towards production. A recent unofficial rumor mentions Eliza Kazan as a possibility to direct it.

WOMEN'S VIEWPOINT

DEFENSE OF 613 COMMANDMENTS
FAILS TO CLEAR LAW AND LORE

By HELEN COHEN

A. A. DAVIDSON, youthful exponent of the Orthodox viewpoint, writes:

"It is necessary to answer Helen Cohen's column on the Taryag Mitzvot (613 Commandments) with respect and seriousness, although my yetzer ha-ra inclines me to sarcasm and anger. But I would rather choose to copy Hillel than Shammal.

"In regard to the charge of being completely ignorant of the 613 Commandments, it may be said that many synagogues contain Chumashim (with English translation) that list all the Taryag Mitzvot. This edition has been out a good many years, and I believe that most Sabbath-keeping, English-speaking Jews are familiar with it, and with the meaning of those Mitzvot. The Written Law was given WITH the Oral Law; no commandment can be properly understood without its proper explanation. Without this explanation one may be led to such blasphemies (for example) as believing that 'eye for eye, tooth for tooth' was ever intended to be taken literally. I intend to apologize for not one of the Mitzvot. Explanation exists, and our duty is made clear by the dicta: 'Go thou and learn it'.

"But perhaps it may seem inconsistent to some, that we speak of keeping the 613 Commandments, when obviously many of them cannot have been kept since the Destruction of the Temple. It may not be amiss to quote the Talmud (Tractate B'rachot, I believe) in which it is written that, since the Destruction of G'd's house, 'there is left to Him only the four ells of the Halachah.' We cannot now acknowledge, that He owns all things, by bringing Him 'our' lambs, and 'our' corn—which are really His own lambs and corn BUT we can acknowledge that 'He possesses all' by studying the Mitzvot which remind us of that. Nor are there any Amalekites, that we should 'blot out the memory' thereof; but their sin was a great sin, and should be studied, that it may be avoided. In an age which deplores virginity and discounts chastity, may we not learn to value both by studying the commentaries on the Commandment that the High Priest marry none but a virgin? Are there really no 'eternal verities'? The Canaanite bondsman? 'Go thou and learn.' The going ox and the injured cow? 'Go thou and learn.' The four penalties of the Beth Din—carried out how often? 'Once in seven years? Nay, once in 70 years. All else is commentary'—but—'Go thou and learn it'.

"'Go thou and learn'—let us all go and learn, not only ethics but holiness as well. There is so little in the world today. Learn holiness even from 'the two spoons of frankincense' for it is written not 'Ye shall be modern, for I the Lord Thy G'd am modern' but 'Ye shall be holy, for I the Lord Thy G'd am holy.' And let us also learn that the 613 Commandments (including those for which we now substitute study and prayer) correspond to the 613 letters of the Shema. As I have said before, the letters live, for they are the vessels of the living spirit; and since man himself is called 'a living spirit,' it behooves him not to despise the letters which sustain his soul."

DEAR MR. DAVIDSON:

Thanks for your former letter, before I forget. I am really getting behind in my correspondence. In answer to this one, would you care to read what Rabbi Charles Chavel has to say in the footnote to the 38th Commandment, on the High Priest wedding only a virgin?

"Under the terms of this commandment, the High Priest is under obligation to take himself a wife and to take only a virgin. . . . The common priest is free from this obligation. The High Priest performing the highest priestly duties in the Sanctuary and acting as the intermediary between the Deity on the one hand and Israel on the other, it was extremely essential that he should be ever inclined towards happiness, Tradition affirming that the Divine Presence would not be made manifest except out of an abundant joyfulness (Shab, 92a). Now since according to the Sages 'he who has no wife lives without happiness, without blessing and without good' (Yeb. 61b) the High Priest was placed under the obligation to be married. . . . In this connection it is to be recalled that a negative commandment (167) prohibits the High Priest from observing Mourning even over the loss of his father and mother."

FROM THE NOTE, WE ASSUME the law to mean that the High Priest was forbidden to marry a divorcee or widow and since there is nothing immoral about a second marriage, we see no reason for using this ruling as a lesson in sexual morality for our time.

However, we have no objection to your interpreting the text in that manner, but we do wonder how you propose to interpret the concept of the High Priest being the "intermediary" when today Judaism insists that man needs no intermediary in his relationship to God?

My family name has been a source of much speculation. I would appreciate your opinion as to its derivation.

MARANS (Marantz) is a Jewish family name commemorating an article of trade. The article in question is an orange known in Yiddish as Pomeranz or its abbreviation Marantz. The ancestor of this name was in all likelihood a dealer in colonial fruit and oranges were his stock in trade. Some years ago I came across a non-Jewish family bearing the name of Marans. It transpired later that their name was a geographical one, being rooted in the village of Maransen in East Prussia. There are many descendants of the Marranos in Western Germany and a few in Poland and Russia. They bear Spanish or Portuguese names but the name Marans is not one of them.

● Leon Michtham of New York writes:

I wonder if you can tell me the meaning of the name Michtham, its history and origin. Also what language it is in?

MICHTHAM is a remarkable Jewish family name. It is a vocalized combination of the initials of four Hebrew words: Meyer Kossev Tillin Mezuzoth (Meyer the Scribe of Tillin and Mezuzoth). The ancestor (Meyer) who composed this name was a Hebrew Sopher or Scribe whose specialty were Tillin and Mezuzoth and he thus commemorated his calling. There are many Jewish family names made up of a series of Hebrew initials. They are difficult of analysis unless you know each name and its

Conflicts Of Personalities No Longer Matter

M Z. FRANK'S column last week on Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver struck one as ancient history. Here it is only a few years ago, actually little more than two, that Rabbi Silver was the dominating force and personality in the intense drive to create a Jewish State. Today one reads about him as a part of history, not as a significant factor in current developments.

Mr. Frank indicates why this is so, without saying it in so many words.

The American Jewish community has moved a long way since May, 1948 in its attitudes toward Zionism and Israel. Every American Jew who isn't either an escapist or a coward is very much interested in helping the new state. That is why such a project as the huge bond sale can gain the overwhelming support of the American Jewish community.

As for the politics and the conflicts of personalities, only a scattered few are concerned, and this number is lessening as the days go by. Those who are still fighting the battle for domination find themselves fighting without an audience. Two years or so ago, each advance, each attack, each maneuver, was worth blow-by-blow recording.

The good sense of the American Jew has asserted itself. He is concerned with the welfare of the state, not with whether this man or that one did or did not help in the past. That is a job for history; the job for the American Jewish community today is to get the state on its feet economically.

The POST was not the only spokesman to report on this development. The POST said early, in the first days of the state, that from here on in the American Jewish community, the Zionists in the United States, had only two tasks: encouragement of chutzpah and the providing of economic aid for Israel. Rabbi Silver made several speeches endorsing these proposals in theory but as far as giving the tremendous power of his personality to doing something about them—he is still on his much-extended vacation.

Mr. Frank makes a great deal of the involvement of Rabbi Silver as between the General Zionists—the central and capitalistic party—and the Mapai, the labor party. This too is merely a theoretical involvement. From the day it became necessary for the state to urge capitalists to invest in Israel, from that day on capitalism was bound to grow and develop as a force in Israel, regardless of what Rabbi Silver or anyone else did or did not do.

If Rabbi Silver were to align himself with the progressives and dissociate himself from the right wing General Zionists, it would enable labor to preserve as much of its glorious achievements as it might hope to do in the face of the growing capitalist element in the state. This kind of real leadership by Rabbi Silver The POST and the American Jewish community would applaud. But Rabbi Silver, if Mr. Frank's analysis is accurate, is more concerned with other matters, better left unmentioned.

The JDA Quits The New York UJA

THE announcement by the Joint Defense Appeal that it is withdrawing from the New York United Jewish Appeal will not by any means necessarily bring the dissolution of the welfare fund structure throughout the United States. In other Jewish communities, the JDA—which is the fund-raising arm of the American Jewish Committee and the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith—will still collect its funds from the local united drives.

In New York, the Greater New York UJA is not a welfare fund except in a broad, general way. New York has its own local drive for home charities, known as the Federation for Jewish Philanthropies of New York. The New York UJA has a more or less close connection with the national UJA and raises the funds for the UJA in New York. Over the past few years, the New York UJA has brought up for a stipulation the annual drives of the JDA, the American Jewish Congress, the Jewish Telegraphic Agency and one or two others, in turn for which these organizations turned their fund-raising apparatus over to the New York UJA.

As receipts for the New York UJA declined and the minor beneficiaries were forced to accept allocation cuts, the partnership grew steadily less stable, with the final result of the JDA withdrawal this year.

Compared with local federations and funds in other cities, there is no comparable feeling in New York for the sense of communal responsibility. What happened in New York, therefore, need not necessarily be repeated in other parts of the nation.

A situation will now exist in New York comparable to that which exists in many other Jewish communities in respect to the drives of Hadassah and the Histadrut. These organizations in most communities receive their funds from the local Jewish funds but in others conduct separate drives.

This is not to say that the action of the JDA is a beneficial one. It is only to point out that the welfare fund structure throughout the United States is much too solidly built to be endangered by what is happening in New York.

The JDA has always raised more funds than most American Jewish organizations. Whether it is entitled to the greater percentage of the money contributed annually to all causes by Jews in the United States is a moot question. But it cannot be denied that there are agencies in the U.S. Jewish community whose work is as valuable, and perhaps more valuable, as that of the American Jewish Committee and the ADL.

The POST has long argued, although unsuccessfully, that the answer is a national Jewish community chest. As it is, the situation looks more like a jungle than any civilized arrangement and not only is might right, but there is little control over what any particular group decides to do—regardless of whether it is good or bad for the Jewish community.

The Queer Position Of The Council Today

THE QUEER position of challenging every development on the road toward the kind of relationship it has advocated from the very beginning is the one in which the American Council for Judaism finds itself today.

When Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion takes a page from the book of the Council, the Council attacks Ben-Gurion and Jacob Blaustein who brought the page back to the United States for all to read.

When the Zionist organizations begin to settle down to normalcy and no longer direct and control every activity in the American Jewish community, the Council resists and says it isn't so.

What Would Happen?

OUR eye was caught by a headline in the Jewish Independent of Cleveland, which read:

COLLEGE OF LUXOR KNOWLEDGE
PLANNED BY TEMPLE EMANU
EL SISTERHOOD MEMBERS

The article must tell of some new device for popularizing Jewish education among the women, we thought as we started to read the story.

"Temple Emanu El Sisterhood announces that Mrs. Nathan I. Gordon, Mrs. Philip Kaufman and Mrs. Jerome H. Levine have conceived the plan of a 'College of Donor Knowledge' when planning the Sisterhood's first annual donor luncheon. Serving as deans of this project, they appointed 20 'professors' to aid the various fund raising departments."

To what ends the Jewish community goes to raise funds!

In collecting information for our Dayton report, we asked, just as a lark, each of the persons interviewed on Jewish education in that community what would happen to the educational and cultural level in Dayton if the same money, time and personnel were expended on Jewish education as on the annual local fund raising drive.

No answer was required; it was a rhetorical question, but it made one begin to think.

THE EDITORS CHAIR

AS AN OLD newspaperman myself, to me the name of Herbert Bayard Swope has always been one to conjure with even before I knew he had been connected with the old N.Y. World. I didn't know Mr. Swope was Jewish for years and years, until I learned that he arranged a dinner each year for the benefit of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency which raised such fabulous sums as $200,000 for the Jewish news-gathering agency.

Even then I wasn't sure he was Jewish.

Now that Mr. Swope has been awarded a gold medal from "Interfaith in Action" we learn from Jacob Landau, head of the JTA why the JTA was able to capture Mr. Swope's imagination when no other Jewish organization seems to have been able to lure him to its side.

Writes Mr. Landau in words which are required reading for every Jewish leader:

"A brilliant newspaperman himself, it is no accident that Swope is particularly interested in the work of newspapers and news agencies. By creating a well informed public opinion, Swope feels we get down to the roots of the evils which beset mankind. He feels strongly that there would be less need for charity if the sinister forces of prejudice and persecution were effectively combatted by the force of an enlightened public opinion. That was why Swope turned down Mr. Warburg when he urged him to accept the chairmanship of the New York Federation of Charities, but exerted himself readily on behalf of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency."

"Swope laid down two principles for the conduct of the JTA's work: Before you publish a story, Swope instructed JTA editors, Ask yourself: Is it news? Is it true? Nothing else matters."

OVER IN ST. LOUIS there has been a unique development in Zionism, which I am quite sure is not equalled anywhere in the United States. Right along with the local district of the Zionist Organization of America, there has grown up a Maccabee Club. As time went on, the members of the Maccabee club, now many years old, became affluent business men and their Zionist activities have been important factors in the St. Louis Jewish community.

The club meets monthly and last Tuesday was to hear Melvin Dubinsky speak on Israel. I was in St. Louis and wanted strongly to attend but having arisen at 2:30 a.m. to catch the morning train I was pretty fagged out by dinner time. Another barrier was a prior arrangement to return to Indianapolis for a meeting with one of our advertising salesmen.

The Maccabee Club will play an important role in the Israel bond sale in St. Louis. Already there are rumors that one of its members may buy $250,000 worth of bonds. That may be an exaggeration, although I hope it isn't, but it cannot be gainsaid that with the Maccabees to spearhead the sale, St. Louis will far outstrip many other Jewish communities its size.

The Maccabees are a unique development; groups of staunch friends of Israel of this kind do not rise and fall on the basis of emergency conditions or of reaching a goal—they remain the backbone of the pro-Israel effort throughout all kinds of times, good and bad. Whether the ZOA will eventually retract unto groups of hard-core Zionists all over the United States, I am not prepared to say, although Louis Lipsky advanced this analysis in explaining the loss of membership just after the rebirth of Israel.

Civil Defense Bill Sent To Knesset

JERUSALEM—A bill to establish a national civil defense organization in Israel was introduced in the Knesset (Parliament) this week by Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion.

The bill, which would replace the Mandatory Emergency Defense Regulations by Israel law, would divide the country into civil defense areas.

The organization would be headed by an officer appointed by the Minister of Defense, assisted by area commanders and an advisory staff representing local authorities and the Minister of the Interior.

Portion of the Week

BO

PARSHAS Bo (Exodus 10:1—13:16; Hapthara Jeremiah 46, 13—28). Four more plagues became the portion of the Egyptians through the constant refusal of Pharaoh to let the people of Israel go, so that they may be able to serve their God. This portion codifies the institution of the Passover, and gives all the regulations for its observance. This observance coincides with the last and horrible plague to visit the Egyptians, the death of the first born and that day, the 15th of Nisan, the children of Israel left Egypt in great haste, after having been enslaved 430 years. The memory of the Exodus from Egypt has from this time on, become the basis for our historical thinking. As the Jew is bidden to tell his son of the miracle and the signs and the covenant that was our portion when he was delivered from Egypt, so we all have to experience the story as if we ourselves would have been delivered from Egypt, so we all have to experience the story as if we ourselves would have been present. This became a basis for so many Jewish scholars writing on the history of our people. Jeremiah's prophecy against Egypt is again the link with our Torah portion. His song becomes an ode of triumph upon the humiliating defeat of Pharaoh at the great battle of Charchemish in 605 BCE and foretells the complete collapse of Egypt and the victory of Babylon.

CHAPLAIN URGES CIVILIAN RABBIS TO HELP BRING GLs TO JUDAISM

● Editor, National Jewish Post:

We chaplains see the products of all types of Jewish homes. We meet the young man who is trying to escape the "old-fashioned" Orthodoxy of the parents he is sure are "narrow-minded" and definitely not part of the American scene. We encounter very often the Conservative and those who come from "very definitely Reformed" homes. Most of all we encounter the "enlightened ones," young men whose parents were liberal enough (what a mockery!) to allow their sons to grow into manhood as free as the wind to choose whichever paths they decide to be on, religiously, morally, socially, etc.

It is concerning Jewish youth from these four groups that I am bothered. As I sit in my office or home during a cherished leisure hour I wonder what has become of some of these "Jews" that I have encountered. I wonder about the young man I met by chance during his basic training period. As we talked about things and places, the truth came to the surface. His parents were both Jewish but he was attending Protestant services. He wanted to attend a service he could understand, he said, and also to hear words of wisdom from a "learned" man. We met in the early days of my chaplaincy career and although I was amazed and shocked by what he had said, I was able to persuade him to a sort of Gentleman's Agreement that he would attend both my services and the Sunday morning Protestant service until he could decide which way his road would travel. This agreement he did keep and with the help of the Almighty I was able to make his choice a Jewish one. This man never missed a Friday evening service and any other religious function we had on the base.

But I wonder now that he is gone, what has happened to him? I wonder whether some civilian rabbi in the town near his new station has taken the initiative to seek him out, since he does not deny he is Jewish, or the hundreds of other young Jewish men who need so sorely to be taken in hand and returned to us.

Then too I think about the youthful corporal who came from an Orthodox-Conservative home with a fine character training and good stable background. I shall always remember him as a gratifying tribute to the things this chaplain has tried to accomplish. Coming from an Orthodox-Conservative home, he knew what his obligations were in the matter of his faith, but the service is a place for re-shuffling, even for the best of us, and he was not sure which path was now the right one.

Should be "one of the boys" with religious obligations, too, or "just one of the boys?" He came to me and we discussed this problem of his at length and often. He came to services and showed an interest in things Jewish but I never really knew just what I was accomplishing with him until one Saturday morning I met him on the street and he stopped me and said, "You know, chaplain, the guys in my barracks are all 'goyim' but they're really swell guys. Today became my day to go on KP due to some mixup in the roster and my sergeant ordered me to go on KP. I told him that my chaplain says that I should try not to go on KP on our Sabbath whenever I can exchange the day, and since this wasn't really my day I would not go! And would you believe it, chaplain," he continued, "every man in the barracks backed me up. Some even volunteered to go for me. Don't you think that was terrific?" Yes, it was terrific, not so much the "goyim" but his courage.

As I reminisce, I wonder what will happen to these men, our future Jewish family men. Will what little I have done to revive the "glowing embers" of Yiddishkeit come to naught now that these men have transferred to new bases where there is no Jewish chaplain or out of the service entirely? I wonder why the civilian rabbis do not take the initiative to keep in close contact with the chaplain so they can be aware of what progress has been made in the matter of religious education for potential members of their community? I realize full well that for some this would be a tremendous task though not impossible. I know that for some other rabbis in small communities it would be no task at all. Yet with the new draft bringing great numbers of Jewish men into the service only one Rabbi Hirsch of Monroe, La., has written me, showing interest in the religious education of a son of one of his congregants.

Uncle Sam's armed forces are stressing religion. There is so much that can be done to educate our Jewish youth in the service. But there must be a follow-up in civilian life and that obligation belongs to the civilian rabbi. Our rabbis taught "seek and ye shall find." Seek then and ye shall find our hidden Jews.

sideration. Neither demanded reinstatement of the nativity scene. Only a few days ago, I had a conversation with a prominent Protestant clergyman in White Plains. He expressed his very deep concern at what he described as a rabble-rousing, hysterical atmosphere at the meeting and at the expressions of various speakers which he did not consider as representative of the Christian point of view in the community.

Technion Tests Concrete For Use

HAIFA—The use of X-rays and ultra-sonic waves in the non-destructive testing of concrete and other building materials is being developed by the Haifa Technion for Israel's housing program.

Tests are being conducted on sample cubes of the material. An investigation also is being conducted into the causes of the cracking of stucco walls.

RABBI CHALLENGES PSYCHIATRIST ON ISSUE OF COUNSELING PEOPLE

● Editor, National Jewish Post:

In a recent issue you print the opinion of a psychiatrist that rabbis should not engage in advising upon mental and personal problems.

It will be readily agreed that the age of the combination medicine-man, priest, oracle and physician is long dead. No one will argue for the absolute omniscience of the rabbi to deal with physical facts that are covered by legitimate science. The Talmud nowhere seriously attributes healing powers to the rabbis. On the contrary, there are specific references to the status of the recognized physician and his opinions, even where a question of law is concerned. Thus it is the medical expert who decides how many "malkos" to administer to one convicted by the religious court. It is the doctor who decides whether a person is fit to fast on Yom Kippur. "Mikan shenitan reshut derofe Leraphos" — a passing text in Exodus is used as a sanction for the independent and autonomous practice of medical healing.

We can extend this further and assume that where psychiatry deals with definite technical disturbances such as lesions in the brain, specific shock, or mental problems traceable to physical ailments in the rest of the body—the rabbi can have no part in the process of healing. Perhaps even then there is a place for the contributions religion can make to the will to live, the moral strength of resistance that even the physician must admit as a factor. But certainly the rabbi will not intrude into that area of fact which is independent of theological orientation or the philosophical outlook of doctor and patient.

It seems, however, that the psychiatrist can also possibly overextend his jurisdiction. When he moves into the arena of "guilt" and "sin" he is not merely telling the divine to mind his own business—he is disputing the right of religion to have any business at all. Liberalize the notion of sin as you may—call it a "missing of the mark" if you will—the rabbi, as a teacher of Judaism, can never abdicate his position as an arbiter of moral maladjustment. Is the psychiatrist better qualified to render value-judgments upon ethical dislocations or moral lapses? As a scientist, he must rather pride himself upon his strict retreat from the area of subjective values. It is the rabbi who frankly admits the acceptance of basic assumptions as to the purpose of life, what constitutes happiness, and the nature of the reality to which the much desired "adjustment" must be made.

If any school of psychiatry is based upon its own philosophy of life and society, let the issue be put in those terms. Let the rabbi and the doctor be frankly recognized as rival mentors of the unhappy individual. Then the individual in question may choose his counselor in accordance with his particular religious orientation. But if psychiatry claims to be no more than a technique of healing it is but fair to restrict it to technical cases. It is not fair to accuse the rabbi of overstepping his bounds when he deals with matters of guilt and self-understanding that transcend technical difficulties.

Correction Note: WZO, Not The ZOA

● Editor, National Jewish Post:

On page 12 of your issue of December 29, I note a brief item at the bottom of column 3 of which the headline reads: "ZOA Offers Housing for Skilled Migrants." May I point out to you that this is a project, not of the Zionist Organization of America, as the headline indicates, but of the World Zionist Organization.

DENIES WHITE PLAINS SCHOOL BOARD SET A POLICY ON NATIVITY PLAYS

● Editor, National Jewish Post:

I was somewhat surprised to read the story on the first page of the December 29th issue, describing the recent events in White Plains in regard to the presentation of the Christmas Nativity scene in the public schools. I had hoped that the National Jewish Post publication would have done more, than to accept the inaccurate story of the event published in the New York press as a basis for its account.

It was made clear several times during the meeting to which your story refers, both by President Bonnar of the Board of Education and Superintendent Ewing. Superintendent of Schools, that there had been no ban on the presentation of the Nativity and that the Board of Education had never made any decision on the subject. As a result of the letter from the three rabbis, the Superintendent of Schools had discussed this with administrative officers of the school system and with the school principals and they had agreed not to include the nativity scene in this year's Christmas celebration. It was made clear that this had been the administrative decision for this year only and that the Board of Education had not discussed the matter nor established any policy.

The resolution adopted by the Board made this clear in its statement "that no ban exists on the nativity program for future years"; this statement has been widely misinterpreted as meaning the rescinding of the ban; it was obviously no such thing. The significant part of the resolution was that the Board supported the action of the Superintendent of Schools and established a committee of Jews, Protestants and Catholics to recommend future policies.

Your statement that "one of the rabbis told the AJP that he did not believe that the White Plains Jewish community would appeal the Board's reversal," hardly makes sense in view of the fact that there has been no reversal.

May I point out another aspect of your story which is quite unfortunate. Both in the headlines and in your text you refer to the "Christian" protest. As a matter of fact there was very little protest from the Protestant population. In fact, the only two non-Catholic speakers at the meeting were Protestants who appealed for moderation and who suggested that there was a problem that needed con-

THE WORLD OF BOOKS

DOCUMENTARY REPORT ON U.S. JEWS
FINE FOR EXPERT, GENERAL READER

By WARD MOORE

Readers of periodicals frequently have the notion that contributors who sign their names have something to do with the heading which is put over their pronouncements. But since newspapers have individual "styles" this function is performed by a specially trained journalist who after glancing at the copy to be set, puts an appropriate head on it. Readers as well as writers have some times been puzzled by the ap propriateness.

MOORE

I mention this technical detail only because I was a little dismayed to find this column proclaiming some weeks back in boldface type "PILGRIM PEOPLE" VALUABLE BUT NOT REAL U. S. JEWISH HISTORY. Not only had I not said this but no one could possibly say this, since any volume, dealing in facts about American Jews in "real" history. My beef with Mrs. Lebeson's book was that, in spite of its merits, it was less than a history of American Jewry—that it was a history of some American Jews, which is not the same thing. An editor who has to supply headlines for a great number of columns is certainly not to be considered too culpable for making such a slip. Nevertheless I offer my sincere apologies to Mrs. Lebeson for the mistaken impression it conveyed.

"A DOCUMENTARY History of the Jews in the United States," edited by Morris U. Schappes (Citadel Press, 752 pages $5) offers the reader many of the original sources from which a history of American Jewry can be written. Here is the letter from Peter Stuyvesant to the West India Company concerning the first Jewish immigrants in 1654. "... we have ... deemed it useful to require them in a friendly way to depart ..." and the letters, petitions and resolutions pertinent to the great and successful fight by Asset Levy to assert not only the right of Jews to remain, but to bear arms and to be treated equitably by the community.

Here are early colonial records, documents from the period of the non-importation agreement and the American Revolution. The golden age of Jewish-gentile relations in the United States is reflected in such trivia as the address to President Washington by various Jewish congregations and such revelatory documents as wills, correspondence and so forth.

THE BOOK ALSO gives a sample—books of this nature are always too short or too long; Dr. Schappes', despite its bulk, is too short—of American attitudes during the twilight zone between the golden age and the contemporary period of frictions. Documents reproduced seem — and judgement must still wait to coming of an historian to present full evidence and attach proper weight of the exhibits—to point to the 1840's as the decade of change in the position of American Jewry. Genuine anti-Semitism, as distinguished from pure verbalism unrelated to actual, physical Jews, seems to have made its first overt appearance at the time of the Damascus blood libel, when Major Noah was strutting his stuff and the Know-Nothings were going full blast, powered by such sterling Jews as Congressman Lewis Levin, whose speech on the floor of the House is reprinted, arguing against Immigrants and immigration.

Dr. Schappes' record is only up to 1875; presumably another Jewish volume or volumes will bring the work up to date. Since American Jewish history remains only partially explored it seems to me that this is a book which would be of great service in American Jewish homes.

A LESS happy note is provided by "Design for Living" by Esther Rudy (New York, Bloch Publishing Co., 224 pages, $3), addressed to young people and offering excerpts from Torah, Talmud, legends, tales and official greetings from Gen. McArthur as well as thumbnail biographies of such observant Jews as Sven Hedin (the Nazi sympathizer), Gov. David Emanuel (a meshumid), Disraeli, Felix Mendelssohn-Bartholdy and Sigmund Romberg. From this volume tender minds can learn that Jews invented the automobile, the telephone and 606.

Mrs. Rudy's heart is unquestionably in the right place; unfortunately, this anatomical phenomenon is insufficient to produce a worthy book.

A TIMELY book is Theodore H. Gaster's "Purim and Hanukkah in Custom and Tradition" (New York, Henry Schuman, 124 pages $2.50), a beautifully bound and printed volume. Like the author's "Passover," it is an exploration of the supposed origins of the festivals. I have no reason for supposing that Dr. Gaster's scholarship is not as sound as the reasoning in his book is persuasive. However, I must mention that he, like many Jewish historians and archaeologists, places unlimited credence—one might almost say a child-like faith—in non-Jewish sources while expressing the most incorruptible skepticism toward Jewish ones.

Thus, the book of Esther is offered only as fable to be corrected by the records of the Persians. According to the Persian records, no King Xerxes ever had a reigning queen named Esther. This may be perfectly true, still one is inclined to wonder whether the identification of Ahasuerus with Xerxes is unalterably established and (oh, uncouth heresy!) if the "Persian Records" are ipso facto more reliable than Jewish canon.

NOT TO LINGER too long on this minor point, according to Dr. Gaster, Persian king's marriages were limited by law to four noble Persian families. Thus it follows Ahasuerus could never have married a Jew. Well, neither could George IV have married Mrs. Fitzherbert. Only he did.

A MORE temperate study is "The Jewish Holidays" by Isaac Unterman (New York, Bloch Publishing Co., 300 pages, $3). Dr. Unterman's studies are less archaeological and speculative than historical and explanatory. As such they serve as an adjunct to the observance of festivals and holy days rather than as a cultural ornament.

HARRY Joshua Stern, Minister of Temple Emanu-El, Montreal, has felt a collection of his sermons and addresses worthy of perpetuation in reasonably permanent form for the delectation of wider audiences than his congregation, the Lions Club, the Union United Church and divers other listeners afforded. By JOSEPH GALE

MORE OF the essence and moving timelessness of the Jewish spirit are in Ernest Bloch's "Schelemo" than in all other rhapsodic compositions of that genre. The tragedy and sadness, the beauty, restlessness and cry of the Jew are all here compounded of augmented or diminished intervals, vast, clamorous octaves, and plunging scales.

The emotional drama is the tragedy of a race which has drawn its strength from the hope of a future Deliverer and now finds the messianic vision dim. Opulence is another Yiddish trait distinguishing this music. Bloch's orchestra is besnawled and befringed, the lines concealed beneath heavy ornamentation, and colors are vivid, striking rather than harmonious.

A COLLECTION of ancient gags, jokes and anecdotes are no doubt deemed appropriate to the State of Israel in view of the 2,000-year hiatus between the Second Commonwealth and the Third. Doubtless this accounts for the antiquity of the contents of "Israel Laughs" by Paul Steiner (New York, Bloch Publishing Co., 166 pages, $2.75) but it hardly excuses the author's labored and awkward method of retelling his battered wares.

Not that all of the humor is 2,000 years old. Some of the stories I recognize as originating in the American Civil War; others I heard in 1918—which of course does not preclude their having been born many years earlier. Of course, no one can object to senescent jokes, but Israel, it seems to me, has enough burdens to bear without having Pat and Mike stories added to them.

"Israel Laughs" has nothing to do with Israel; the name has simply been grafted on the collection. It has still less to do with laughter.

Savagely orchestrated, Oriental-tinged, rife with lamentation and vehemence, "Schelemo" may remain the most searching statement on the psyche of a race.

THE RCA VICTOR recording of "Schelemo," with Emanuel Feuermann, is out of print, and this is the only domestic release of the work. It is not as vivid as the other, nor is the London Orchestra quite as good as the one in the original recording. Zara Nilsova, while not of Feuermann caliber, draws a good, strong bow. Her playing occasionally dips in the waves of orchestral sound, but otherwise, it is adequate.

An interesting analogy is drawn between comparison of the above and Overture on Hebrew Themes (Opus 34), by Sergei Prokofiev, a comparison in which the Overture may, to some, seem lacking, following the richness of "Schelemo."

As in the latter recording, the original of the Overture is out of print. It was made by Vivian Rivkin and a distinguished quintet for the Disc Company of America, now defunct. The present performance is equally as good.

Where the Bloch work was panoramic, the Prokofiev is a facet. It is made of two simple themes—a "frailach tanz" assigned to the clarinet, and a mildly mournful cantabile given to the strings. The two motifs play back and forth, and with transition passages, comprise the scope of the composition. It is a trifle, but skillfully written, and already embroidered with signs of Prokofiev's later genius.

The composition stems from his interest in Jewish themes during younger days. He was 28 when a friend gave him a collection of Hebrew folk songs with the insistent request that he compose a work for chamber ensemble based on some of the melodies. Prokofiev chose two contrasting melodies and wrote this short overture for clarinet, string quartet and piano.

JDA Pulls Out Of New York UJA To Run Independent Campaign for $3,000,000

Civic Defense Fund Refused Guarantee

National Jewish Post

(See Editorial This Issue)

NEW YORK—The Joint Defense Appeal pulled out of the United Jewish Appeal of Greater New York when the N. Y. UJA refused to give the JDA either a flat guarantee for 1951 or permission to run a supplementary campaign here.

The Joint Defense Appeal is the fund-raising arm of the American Jewish Committee and the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, two of the major American Jewish civic defense agencies.

The JDA formally announced last week that it would run a separate campaign in New York for $3,000,000 this year. The announcement was made by Jacob Blaustein, president of the AJ Committee, and Justice Meier Steinbrink, national ADL chairman.

STARTS FEB. 1

The joint statement said that the drive, to be launched Feb. 1, will seek $6,000,000 nationally. The officials said that the separate fund drive this year was made necessary because of reductions in aid from the New York UJA, which is a local agency, separate from the national UJA.

For the past four years, the JDA has been one of the beneficiaries of the New York UJA campaign. Last year, negotiations nearly collapsed when the New York UJA and the JDA hagled for weeks over terms for the 1950 agreement.

FIRST YEAR TAKE

In the first year of the agreement, the JDA received $2,500,000, which The POST learned reliably was approximately $700,000 more than the JDA had raised the previous year in its independent campaign.

The American Jewish Congress, militant, pro-Zionist civic defense agency, also has been a beneficiary of the New York UJA and received around $1,000,000 that first year.

In succeeding years, as UJA collections grew smaller, the beneficiary agencies collected less, although the JDA remained the largest beneficiary.

Negotiations for a 1951 agreement centered around a JDA demand for a flat guarantee of $1,800,000, or for a guarantee of $1,600,000, plus permission to run a supplementary drive in New York.

NO SALE

Negotiations ended when the executive committee of the New York UJA unanimously rejected the JDA demands, whereupon the JDA made its plans for its first independent fund campaign in New York in four years.

The Congress reportedly was still negotiating for continued inclusion in the 1951 campaign. It was understood that there would be no difficulty in reaching agreement in that case. Also negotiating is the National Jewish Welfare Board.

During the four-year period, the JDA had participated in the city-wide fund-raising, throwing its own machinery into the UJA program and foregoing a drive of its own in exchange for an allocation. The pattern in New York had been in line with the established practice in Jewish communities throughout the United States, although the New York UJA is not a welfare fund.

STEINBRINK BLAUSTEIN
Independence for Money

The New York program is the third and largest of the separate campaigns planned for this year by the JDA. The fund-raising agency earlier had reached an agreement with welfare funds in Boston and Chicago to run separate campaigns.

SUPPLEMENTARY ONLY

The Boston and Chicago agreements, however, were described as supplementary campaigns, based on dissatisfaction, but not rejection, of allocations from the welfare funds in those cities.

Total allocations to the JDC from central fund-collecting agencies for 1950 came to about $4,000,000, compared with a goal for that year of $6,200,000. For 1951, the JDA adopted a "budget" of $5,784,321 at its fifth annual conference in Cincinnati last year. (NJP, Dec. 29, 1950).

Israel Gov't Upholds Ban On German Use

JERUSALEM—The Israel Government last week upheld an action by the Israel Censorship Board in banning use of German in public entertainment.

The ban had created a storm of popular resentment, with critics blasting the board for its "medieval" action.

Moshe Shapiro, Minister of the Interior, said the use of the German language in plays, recitations, films and operas would antagonize a "large" section of the population.

Shapiro stressed that cultural values created in Germany were not affected and were still being taught in Israel schools. He said the ban applied only to the German language.

The cost of living index in Israel stood at 325 in December, based on 1939 as 100. This compares with the all-time high of 371 in April, 1949.

By Z'EV KRONISH

National Jewish Post Correspondent

NEW YORK—(NJP)—Sale of Israel's multi-million dollar bond issue in the United States will get underway not later than May 1, Henry Montor said last week at the first meeting of the board of the American Financial and Development Corp. (AFDC).

Montor said that offices in all major cities are planned by the AFDC for the bond sale.

Henry Morgenthau, Jr., former general chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, was elected chairman of the board at its first meeting Friday.

BOARD INCLUSIVE

Other members of the board include leaders of six national Jewish organizations, a publisher of a New York daily, a major Hollywood producer, and a distilling executive.

When Eliezer Kaplan, Israel Treasurer, announced plans for the formation of the bond-selling corporation two weeks ago, he said that the bond issue would be underwritten by an American group called "Friends of Israel."

A spokesman for the AFDC told The POST that no such group was being organized or planned for organization. The spokesman said Kaplan was merely referring to Zionists and non-Zionists who have shown interest in the bond drive.

THE REASON WHY

The May 1 date was set with an eye to the start of spring campaigns in local communities for the United Jewish Appeal. The strategy was understood to be motivated by the urgent need to prevent any diminishing of contributions to the local overall drives from the bond sale.

Other participants at the organizing meeting of the AFDC Board of Governors were Ambassador Abba Eban and Dr. James G. McDonald, leading Christian Zionist, who recently resigned as the first U.S. ambassador to Israel.

There have been persistent reports that Dr. McDonald would be named to a major post in American Jewish fund-raising for Israel.

TALK WITH TRUMAN

In accepting the post as board chairman, Morgenthau said he had discussed the bond sale with President Truman. He did not indicate what had been said at the meeting.

It was reported that after registration of the bonds with the Securities and Exchange Commission, the securities will be offered to the public through Jewish communities in cities where the AFDC will set up branch offices.

The Zionist Organization of America, through President Benjamin Browdy, is already committed to sale of $100,000,000 in bonds.

The organizations represented on the board are: the American Jewish Committee through its president, Jacob Blaustein; the American Jewish Congress, through President Irving Miller; B'nai B'rith by Frank Goldman; Hadassah by Mrs. Samuel Halprin; the American Section of the Jewish Agency for Palestine by chairman Nahum Goldmann; and the ZOA by Browdy.

ON THE BOARD

Strength on the board in terms of American Jewish ideologies gave a dominant place to men associated with United Jewish Appeal campaigning, a second place to the Zionist movement, with non-Zionists roughly in third place.

The rest of the board membership is: Joseph Cherner of the Cherner Motor Co., Washington, D.C.; Samuel H. Daroff, of H. Daroff and Sons, Philadelphia; Abraham Feinberg of Jac Feinberg and Sons, New York; George Friedland of Food Fair Stores, Philadelphia; Samuel Goldwyn, motion picture producer; Abe Kasle, Kasle Steel Corp., Detroit; William J. Levitt, of Levitt & Sons, New York; Joseph Mazer, Hudson Pulp and Paper Co., New York; Edward D. Mitchell, President, Beneficial Standard Life Insurance Co., Los Angeles; Sidney Rabb, Stop & Shop Store, Inc., Boston; Lewis S. Rosenthal, President and Chairman of the Board of Schenley Industries, New York; Albert Schiff, Vice-President, Shoe Corporation of America, New York; Mrs. Dorothy Schiff, publisher of the New York Post, New York; Morris Shapiro, Trimount Clothing Co., Boston; Rudolf G. Sonneborn, New York; Roger W. Straus, Chairman of the Board, American Smelting and Refining Company, New York; and Benjamin Swig, hotel operator, San Francisco.

The forthcoming bond sale is part of a one and a half billion dollar program proposed by Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion last September and approved by the National Planning Conference for Israel in Washington, D.C. last October.

First Forged Money Found In Israel

National Jewish Post
TEL AVIV — Forged 10-pound Israeli notes have been discovered by Criminal Investigation Department officials.

Assistant Attorney Gen. Avraham Zellinger, chief of the CID, said the forged money was believed to have originated in "a neighboring country."

Zellinger said that a careful observer could spot the fake bills.

He added that there was no reason to be worried, since only a few notes are believed to be in circulation.

SLICK RED TRICK ON ISRAEL A FLOPPY

WARSAW—A slick Communist bid to embarrass Israel through its former envoy to Poland failed this week.

A formal announcement had been issued through the controlled Warsaw press and radio that Azriel Barzilay, Israel ambassador to Poland, and three of his aides, had resigned.

The announcement said they had resigned in protest against Israel support of "American aggression in Korea," and that the four would seek "asylum" in Poland. The four men are all members of the pro-Soviet Mapam, one of the major opposition parties to the dominant centrist Mapai in Israel.

This week, Azriel Ukhmani bluntly denied both that the four had resigned in protest against Israel support of the United Nations stand on Korea, or that they planned to ask for "asylum" in Poland.

Ukhmani said that Barzilay would leave Poland this week-end and that he and the other two aides would leave for Israel early next month.

The former legation counselor said that the four had written to Foreign Minister Moshe Sharret that their resignations had been based on their membership in Mapam. Ukhmani did not elaborate on the precise issue which led his party to order him to quit his post.

U. S. Reform Leaders Reject Bid To Welcome Rabbi Maimon

CINCINNATI — Top U.S. Reform leaders have rejected invitations to serve as sponsors for the appearance here next month of Rabbi Judah L. Maimon, a leading member of the Religious Bloc in Israel.

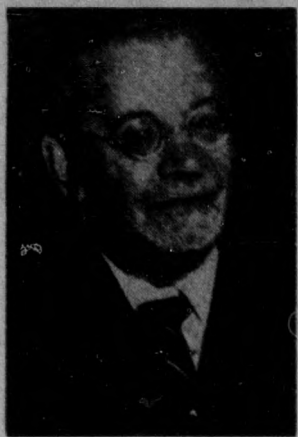

Among those who declined the invitations were Dr. Nelson Glueck, president of the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion, the American Reform seminary; Lester A. Jaffe, chairman of the Board of Governors of the HUC-JIR; Rabbi Stanley A. Brav of Rockdale Temple and Philip Meyers, former Ohio chairman of the United Jewish Appeal and of the Cincinnati Jewish Welfare Fund. Details of the event were reported by the American Israelite.

THE REASON WHY

The Reform leaders turned down the bid on grounds that they could not take the step of serving on a reception committee for a spokesman for Orthodoxy in Israel.

No such qualms disturbed three other Reform leaders, however. The list of Jewish leaders who did accept the invitations included Rabbis James G. Heller and Samuel Wohl of James M. Wise Temple here, both leading Zionists.

Rabbi Victor E. Reichert, a member of the board of the anti-Zionist American Council For Judaism, also was on the sponsors list. He also is a Reform rabbi.

A TOUR STOP

The appearance of the famous Orthodox leader, who is Minister of Religions in Israel, is one of a series of stops in a tour of the United States. He will speak at a dinner in his honor Feb. 4, sponsored by the Cincinnati chapter of the Mizrahi (religious Zionist) Organization of America. The Mizrahi Organization is sponsoring Rabbi Maimon's tour nationally.

Rabbi Maimon is scheduled to begin his tour in New York Jan. 28. He is expected to present the Orthodox Israel viewpoint on minority religious conditions in Israel as well as other issues of religious freedom in the Jewish State.

NO COMMENT

Dr. Glueck rejected his invitation without public comment but Rabbi Brav, Jaffe and Meyers criticized the Orthodox rabbinical leader.

Jaffe said he could not conscientiously serve on the welcoming committee because Rabbi Maimon "is the spearhead of the present movement in Israel to create an effective union of church and state."

He said he had always been opposed to such a union not only in the United States but in Israel.

"We are confronted by a unique situation in present day Israel," Jaffe said. "Every obscure group is accorded complete religious freedom but non-Orthodox rabbis, whether Conservative or Reform, are not permitted to carry on their functions in the same way as the officially recognized Orthodox rabbis."

WHAT CONSERVATIVES?

It was not clear what the Reform lay leader meant by his reference to "Conservative" rabbis since there are no known rabbis of that rabbinical wing now active in Israel.

"It is ironic to reflect that a man like Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver, who has done perhaps more than any individual in this country to bring freedom to Israel would, as a Reform rabbi, be denied the right to officiate in the land which he helped to create in the same way as Orthodox rabbis are permitted to do," Jaffe said.

DR. NELSON GLUECK
An Invitation Rejected

"I love Israel," he added. "I have supported it financially and in other ways and shall continue to do so. I also respect Jewish tradition, in fact I am a member not only of the (Reform) Rockdale Temple but also of Congregation Ohav Shalom."

"But you appreciate why I cannot sponsor a meeting for a man who defends a theocratic and hierarchial principle which is objectionable to me as an American and unacceptable to me as a Jew," Jaffe concluded.

Rabbi Brav also described himself as sympathetic to the difficulties now troubling Israel.

He added, however, that he believed that "these difficulties are compounded and aggravated by the so-called Religious Bloc of which Rabbi Maimon is an acknowledged leader."

HE DISCRIMINATES

"His very office, the Ministry of Religions, has not only contributed to open discrimination in Israel against expressions of Judaism other than its own strict interpretation, but by its very existence violates against the principle of the separation of church and state, and makes for an Established Religion."

Rabbi Brav concluded with the comment that he could not give honor to the representative of such a position, "so contrary to my firm convictions concerning democratic government."

Meyers, rejecting the invitation, said that "from what I understand, the group Rabbi Maimon represents is a pretty dictatorial bunch."

"If I am not mistaken in what I have learned, then certainly I can have no sympathy with an intolerant religious group even if that intolerant group happens to be an Orthodox Jewish group," he said.

Cases Against Jewish Youth Continued In Attack Incident

By HARRY CUSHING

National Jewish Post Correspondent

BOSTON—(NJP)—Judge Bert Holland of the West Roxbury court last week dismissed charges against 18 Dorchester youths arrested in connection with a bid to avenge the beatings of a group of Jewish boys.

Judge Holland continued for six months the cases of seven others. All were charged with "making an affray" when they sallied out in strength to find and punish the hoodlums who attacked boys from the Hecht House, Jewish community center in the Dorchester area.

ARRESTED IN ACTION

The 25 youths were arrested in Hyde Park on Nov. 2 when police were notified they had gathered in Dorchester for a foray to Hyde Park to avenge the beatings suffered by Hecht House members on Halloween week.

The seven whose cases were continued were arrested in one car, in which police said they found an unloaded revolver.

No arrests have been made of any of the young toughs who attacked the Jewish boys.

The request for continuance was made by John V. Bonner, representing police commissioner Sullivan. Ben G. Leve, prominent Jewish communal leader, was defense attorney. Also present in court were Robert Segal, executive director of the Jewish Community Council; Philip Slepian of the Big Brother Association and Jason Silverman of the Boston Anti-Defamation League.

TRIAL OBSERVER

An observer at the trial was Sgt. Abraham Morse, recently named special officer to study group tensions under auspices of the Boston police department.

Sgt. Morse is working with Prof. Gordon W. Allport of Harvard University, internationally-known social psychologist and an expert in government and race relations.

Scholar's Kin From Israel Studies In U.S.

National Jewish Post

CHICAGO—Israel Kagan Cohen of Jerusalem, great-grandson of Rabbi Israel Meir HaCohen of Radin, famous Jewish scholar, enrolled this week in the Chicago Jewish Academy, high school division of the Hebrew Theological College in Chicago.

The 14-year-old sabra (Israeli native-born) whose mother was a grand-daughter of the Chofetz Chaim, is the most recent addition to the seminary's international colony, which includes students from 12 foreign countries.

Netura Karta Member Defies Court After Draft Dodge Term

National Jewish Post

JERUSALEM—A member of the fanatic Netura Karta was out on bail this week after telling a Jerusalem court that he would refuse to report for military service despite conviction for draft evasion.

Haim Steinberg was sentenced to three months imprisonment on counts of failing to report for a medical inspection and for military service.

After sentence was pronounced, Steinberg told Judge Harry A. Witkon that he would not obey the orders to report.

DEFENSE REJECTED

Judge Witkon rejected Steinberg's contention that the Defense Law did not apply to Jerusalem, where the zealot sect has its headquarters. Steinberg had argued that the time of the establishment of the state, Israel had adopted the United Nations partition resolution, under which both old and new Jerusalem were to have been internationalized.

The defense argued that Jerusalem was an occupied area under the sovereignty of the UN and therefore the court should read local law subject to international law.

FIRST IS FIRST

Judge Witkon ruled that although the local law might be in contradiction to an international rule, the local law takes precedence in an Israel court. He noted, in addition, that there was no sovereign authority actually operating in new Jerusalem other than Israel.

Judge Witkon also rejected the defense argument that the Netura Karta was a religious minority whose ideas should be recognized and protected in terms of the declaration of establishment which promised non-discrimination against religious minorities. He ruled that this declaration was not a basis for evasion of military service.

NO DISCRIMINATION

A final argument rejected by the court was that a clause in the Defense Law which exempted Orthodox women from military service was a discrimination against men unless Orthodox men were granted the same exceptions.

The court approved a request of the zealot for appeal to the Supreme Court and he was released on bail.

Gary Senior Hadassah To Hear Mrs. William Henning Rubin

By MRS. ROBERT BERG (Gary, 7168)

GARY—Gary Senior Hadassah's Youth Aliyah luncheon at 1 p. m. Monday, Jan. 15 at the Marshall House will hear Mrs. William Henning Rubin of Chicago speak on, "Youth Aliyah, 1951." Mrs. Birdie Sharpe, Youth Aliyah chairman, will give a report of the work of her committee and Mrs. Morris Chaikin, J.N.F. chairman, will present a Golden Book certificate to Mrs. Irwin Simon in recognition of her service to Gary Hadassah.

The meeting will be conducted by Mrs. P. J. Rosenbloom, president. Mrs. Robert Berg, program chairman will introduce the speaker.

A two weeks' paid vacation plus a round trip railroad ticket for two is being offered by Gary Senior Hadassah to the one whose key unlocks a treasure chest. Mrs. Harry Rubin, HMO chairman and her record-keeping assistant, Mrs. Irving Goldstein are busy distributing envelopes containing the keys.

As an added inducement, Mrs. P. J. Rosenbloom is offering a matinee ticket to "South Pacific" to anyone who sells $35.00 worth of keys. The $35.00 will be counted toward the ten year service pin for which many are working, while a sale of $25.00 of keys will net the seller a donor luncheon plate.

The week of Feb. 22 to March 1 has been set aside for purchasers to try their keys and discover the one which will open the lock. The treasurer chest is at Holtzman's Men's Furnishing store, 710 Broadway.

The Marcovich Travel Agency of East Chicago have offered to give the Gary chapter their commission on all airplane tickets purchased through them during this period.

Sisterhood Card Party Wednesday—Temple Beth El Sisterhood will hold their annual card party in the Temple Social Rooms Wednesday night of Jan. 17 in conjunction with a bake sale under the direction of Mrs. Sidney Weiss and Mrs. Benjamin Gross. Committee in charge of the card party are Mrs. Bernard Golner, Mrs. Harold Zweig and Mrs. Albert Weinstein. Mrs. Jack Gelfman will arrange the table decorations while Mrs. Peter Schatz is in charge of local publicity.

Rabbi, Mrs. August Named Beneficiaries — Rabbi and Mrs. Garry August became the principal beneficiaries of the estate of Mr. Albert Erlich of St. Joseph, Mo. under terms filed in probate court in that city last week. (Continued on next page)
